TABLE OF CONTENTS:

| Option 2: Additional Income Sources | 8 |
| Option 3: Lower-Cost Loans | 11 |

If you are struggling to make ends meet or pay for an emergency, this guide can help you with safe and affordable options to high-cost loans. It includes ways to lower your bills and find other sources of income, as well as lower-cost loans. Most of these options do not require you to take on more debt.

HOT TOPIC! Student loans:

On June 30th, 2023, the Supreme Court overturned the Biden administration's student loan forgiveness program. The COVID-related student loan pause is set to end on August 31, 2023. Interest begins accruing on September 1, 2023, and payments will be due beginning October 2023.

TIP! Be on the lookout for mail or email from your student loan servicer, and start to set aside money now to cover this monthly expense. Go to the Student Loans section of this guide to learn more.

211 - New Chicago/Cook County Hotline

Residents of Chicago and suburban Cook County now have access to a free hotline to help them with their essential everyday needs. The 211 system can connect residents to essential health and social support services and information during times of non-emergency crisis. Call 2-1-1 (open 24/7) or visit their website at 211metrochicago.org. (311 is still active for non-emergency city services.)

Option 1: Get Help Lowering Bills

There are many ways to lower your expenses. Most companies have programs to help customers experiencing economic hardship. You may be able to negotiate with your creditors to lower what you owe. Tell your creditors and other companies to whom you owe money if you are experiencing an economic hardship.

Housing

Homeowners: The Illinois Homeowner Assistance Fund (ILHAF) provides up to $60,000 in mortgage assistance to eligible homeowners and has re-opened for another round of applications. We recommend that interested applicants watch an informational webinar to learn more about the process and requirements. Visit illinoishousinghelp.org/ilhaf to watch the webinars, find more information, and submit an application.

If you are struggling financially, you may qualify for a mortgage forbearance, which allows you to postpone paying your mortgage. The easiest way to obtain a mortgage forbearance is to apply on your mortgage servicer's website or call them directly.

If you have a complicated situation, are encountering obstacles, and/or prefer to speak to a live person, use this online HUD search tool to find a housing counselor or call 800-569-4287 (multilingual assistance available). If you're facing foreclosure, call 888-995-HOPE (4673) to be connected to free, comprehensive, foreclosure assistance 24/7.

Tip! Prioritize Essential Expenses First

Pay for essential needs before anything else. Essentials include shelter (mortgage or rent), food, and utilities. Before an unpaid bill can be reported to the credit bureaus, which would harm your credit score, it must be at least 30 days late. A single late payment fee before a bill is 30 days late is preferable to a high-cost loan, which will cost you much more in fees. If you are uncertain about which option might be preferable, you can always call Capital Good Fund's financial coaching hotline at 866-584-3651.

Renters: Rental assistance can take a lot of pressure off your overall finances. Consider these resources for rental assistance options and applications:

- Housing Action Illinois.
- Rentervention.com, focuses on Chicago residents, but can assist any Illinois resident.
- The Illinois Court-Based Rental Assistance Program (CBRAP) offers funding to Illinois tenants with pending cases in eviction court. Click here to view eligibility requirements and apply.

If you're being threatened with eviction, visit EvictionHelpIllinois.org for free legal assistance. If you're worried about eviction, you can find free legal help, rental assistance programs, and other resources at Chicago.gov/eviction. (for Chicago residents) and Cook County Legal Aid (for Cook County residents).

Housing Counseling: Housing counselors provide guidance on buying a home, renting, loan defaults, foreclosures, and credit issues. Many housing counseling organizations offer financial wellness education at no cost to the participant. Some reputable organizations in Chicago that provide housing counseling are

- Spanish Coalition for Housing
- Chicago Urban League
- The Resurrection Project

2-1-1: You can also try Chicago's 2-1-1 hotline to be connected with housing assistance.

Car Payment

Options for assistance during an economic hardship may include changing the due date of your payments, creating a new repayment plan to lower your monthly payment, or deferring (postponing) your payments. Contact your lender for more information.

Utilities and Internet

Utilities

All major Illinois utility providers have their own bill assistance programs including ComEd, Peoples Gas, North Shore Gas, Nicor, and Ameren. Contact your provider to access funds and policies set aside for financial support.

If you are lower income, contact both your utility provider and the following state utility assistance programs:

- For help with gas and electric bills, visit the State of Illinois Utility Bill Assistance website or call 877-411-WARM (9276) (Mon–Fri, 8 a.m.–5 p.m.).
- For help with water, sewer, and energy bills, visit HelpIllinoisFamilies.com to learn more about Illinois's new assistance program.

For more information, call Chicago's 2-1-1 hotline for housing or utility bill assistance in the Chicago and Cook County area.

Internet

The federal government's Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP) can help low-income households pay their monthly internet bill. Eligible households can get up to a $30-per-month discount on their internet bill.

Visit ACPBenefit.org to find out if you're Eligible, submit an application and choose an internet service provider. If you need to talk to someone about eligibility or your application status, call the ACP Support Center at 877-384-2575.

Eligible Illinois residents can access low-cost internet, affordable refurbished computers, and digital education training through the nonprofit PCs for People. PCs for People is a participant in the Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP) mentioned above, which reduces the price of monthly internet service to $0 and significantly discounts computers for eligible residents. Student Loans

On June 30th, 2023, the Supreme Court overturned the Biden administration's one-time student loan forgiveness program. The COVID-related student loan pause is set to end on August 31, 2023. Interest begins accruing on September 1, 2023, and payments will be due beginning October 2023.

To prepare, login to your Federal Student Aid account, update your contact info, lookout for mail or email from your student loan servicer, and start to set aside money now to cover this monthly expense. You should also look into all your options for repayment as a variety of payment plans and even potential forgiveness programs are available to relieve borrowers. Your monthly payment could range from $0 to a few hundred dollars per month or more, depending on a number of factors, such as your repayment plan, annual income, and the size and types of your loans. You can use the Federal Student Aid website's Loan Simulator to find out your best repayment options relative to your personal situation and your primary repayment goal, and to get a sense of what your monthly payment might be. Note that the Simulator is only a simulation. Only your loan servicer can determine your exact monthly payment.

Fortunately, the Supreme Court did not rule against the Biden Administration's reforms to income-driven repayment (IDR) plans, which are plans that make repayment more affordable by pegging your monthly loan payment to your income. A variety of these plans exist and borrowers should review all their options to figure out which best fits their financial situation. You will not be enrolled in any of these plans automatically. Applications to enroll in an IDR plan on the Federal Student Aid site are open now. You must also recertify your income annually to remain on an IDR plan.

Saving on a Valuable Education (SAVE) plan is a new and much more generous IDR plan replacing the REPAYE plan. If you are already enrolled in REPAYE, you will be automatically moved to SAVE. On this IDR plan, you would see your monthly payments on undergraduate loans cut in half beginning in July 2024. Furthermore, if your annual income is under 225% of the federal poverty line ($32,805 per year for a one-person household), this plan would reduce your monthly payment to $0. Note that while some benefits took effect this summer, other benefits do not go into effect until July 2024. These new benefits will take place automatically for anyone enrolled in the SAVE plan.

All of the IDR plans provide that after 20 or 25 years of repayment, any additional debt will be forgiven. Borrowers who enroll in an IDR plan may therefore want to rethink their repayment strategy: rather than aiming to pay off your debt, you may want to focus on making your monthly payment as low as possible and take advantage of debt forgiveness in the future.

The Biden Administration also started a “Fresh Start” program for student loan borrowers who are in default on their loans. Some benefits are available now, and others will be available after the payment pause ends. The Department of Education is reaching out to defaulted borrowers to inform them of the steps they should take, so you should make sure that your student loan servicer has your current contact information. To learn more, visit the Department of Education’s Fresh Start page.

If at any point you have difficulty affording your student loan payments, you should first consider an IDR plan, which could result in a $0 payment. If an IDR plan is not affordable, you should ask your loan servicer about a deferment of payments, or a forbearance, which is a temporary pause making loan payments. Be aware that time in deferment or forbearance might not count toward the federal government’s various debt cancellation plans and that you may continue to accrue interest while you are not making payments.

Finally, if you have multiple federal student loans, you might want to consider “consolidating” your loan soon. This is the process of taking out a new federal loan to repay and replace your existing federal loans, and is necessary for borrowers with older loans to access some of the government’s newer programs. You can learn more on the Federal Student Aid website’s Consolidate Loans page. Although historically borrowers risked losing certain benefits if they consolidated, for most borrowers they can keep their benefits and consolidate if they do so before December 31, 2023.

For a more comprehensive breakdown of your options for managing student loan payments, visit the National Consumer Law Center’s Student Loan Borrower Assistance website or the Student Borrower Protection Center’s Cancel My Student Debt website. The State of Illinois is also hosting a series of webinars about managing student loan payments - learn more at go.uillinois.edu/repay.

Automatic, Recurring Payments

Many people pay their bills through automatic, recurring payments (e.g., subscriptions, gym memberships, loans, credit cards). We recommend canceling unnecessary subscriptions and re-subscribing when your financial situation improves.

If canceling is not the best option, contact the companies that deduct money through autopay to explain your situation. They may be willing to temporarily freeze your account. If that’s not an option, you have the right to stop automatic, recurring payments and to revoke your authorization for the company to deduct money. This will not relieve you of your obligation to pay the company, but you can manually control the timing of the payment and make the payment only after you have paid for essential items.

Credit Cards

Major credit card companies have assistance programs or list recommended go-to resources for borrowers experiencing financial difficulty. For example, American Express offers flexible payment plans while Capital One lists steps they recommend customers take to address financial hardship. Make sure you understand the benefits and drawbacks of any relief program before you opt in.

Visit your credit card company’s website to learn more. If you cannot find info online, call the customer service number on your card to ask about your options.

Medical Bills

Contact your medical provider/biller and explain that you are unable to pay the bill due to financial hardship and request a payment plan. If you do not have success with one representative, ask to speak to a supervisor who may be able to help more. You could also call back at a different time or a different day in the hopes of speaking to a different representative. Medical providers would rather put you on a payment plan than refer the account to a collection agency.

Child Support

If you owe child support and are unable to make the payments, first notify the person who receives the support. The State of Illinois also provides free child support services. Complete an online application for services. For more information, call 800-447-4278 or visit any Department of Child Support Services office. These services can also assist you if you are owed child support.

If you cannot afford to make your child support payments, the court may modify your obligation if you have lost your income or have another major hardship. The Greater Chicago Legal Clinic has a helpline at 312-796- 3070. Illinois Legal Aid Online has an online guide to help you with paperwork.

Accounts in Collections

The worst thing you can do is to do nothing. Request a payment plan. If you already have a payment plan but are unable to afford the monthly payments, ask to adjust the plan.

Collection agencies would rather you pay something than refer it to their lawyers to collect through the court system. Staying in communication with them is most important. For advice for dealing with debt collectors - including what they can (and can't) legally do to collect on debt and sample letters you can use when communicating with debt collectors - see this article from the National Consumer Law Center. If a creditor or collection agency has sued you or is threatening to sue you, call legal aid. Even if your income is too high to qualify for legal aid, they can refer you to someone else.

- In Northern Illinois, call Prairie State Legal Services at 888-966-7757 (Mon–Thurs 9 am–1 pm).
- In Chicago or suburban Cook County, call Legal Aid Chicago at 312-341-1070.
- In Central or Southern Illinois, call Land of Lincoln Legal Aid at 877-342-7891.

Option 2: Additional Income Sources

This section contains strategies for increasing your income without going deeper into debt. A loan is not income, and it often makes a person's financial situation worse by making them pay yet another bill.

COVID-related assistance: The federal COVID-19 Public Health Emergency is over. Therefore, many COVID-related assistance programs have ended. Throughout this guide, we indicate which programs are still in effect.

Food Access and Discounted Essentials

Many charities provide free food, free clothing, and other essentials. Catholic Charities locations across Illinois offer assistance regardless of your religion. A financial coach can also help direct you to resources.

SNAP/LINK (Food Stamps) Recipients: All Illinois SNAP recipients saw their benefits reduced in March 2023. To learn more about this change, including how you can maximize and potentially increase your benefits, visit the Greater Chicago Food Depository's info page.

For food assistance, look up food banks in your area using IllinoisFoodBanks.org's search tool. FeedingIllinois.org also lists food banks throughout Illinois.

Tax Refunds/Credits

You could be eligible for thousands of dollars in tax refunds by filing your taxes. This is especially true if you have children and are lower income. While the filing deadline was April 18, 2023, there is no penalty for filing late if you don't owe the IRS any money. File as soon as possible to get your refund.

Many are eligible for free, online tax-preparation services. Most programs to help people file taxes for free are available from January to October.

- Visit GetMyPaymentIL.org to learn more about how to file your taxes for free and get your Recovery Rebate Credit. They have a hotline (888-553-9777) for people without computer access or more complicated tax questions.

- The AARP Foundation's Tax-Aide program provides free tax preparation assistance to people over 50 and people with low to moderate income. They offer in-person or virtual assistance across Illinois.
- In Chicago, Ladder Up offers free tax assistance to eligible families. Ladder Up also has pro bono attorneys available for more complicated tax situations.

For additional help, Chicago/Cook County's 2-1-1 helpline lists additional tax prep resources.

If you have children, you may be eligible for the Child Tax Credit, which is offered to qualifying families with children and is a credit of up to $2,000 per qualifying child that you receive upon filing your taxes. While this credit was increased in 2021 due to the pandemic, these enhancements have since expired and the credit has returned to its pre-pandemic levels. Visit the IRS website to view eligibility requirements. You can also use the IRS's interactive tool to see if you qualify.

If you still haven't received one or more stimulus checks that were issued in 2020-2021, you may claim the Recovery Rebate Credit on your taxes to receive it.

Many lower income people are also eligible to receive money from the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). Learn if you are eligible for the EITC. Keep in mind there is both a federal EITC and an Illinois EITC. If you qualify for the federal EITC, it is extremely likely you qualify for the Illinois EITC.

Filing your taxes online and using a bank account number for direct deposit will help you get the money much more quickly. If you didn't file taxes in the last two years but think you might be eligible for these tax credits, you can still file a paper return for those years to receive your past refunds.

Tip! Online freelance work can be a source of quick cash, but don't rely on it.

You may hear about a number of ways to make cash online through websites that offer various types of freelance work such as taking surveys, testing websites, online tutoring, and other tasks. These include sites like Amazon Mechanical Turk, Tutor.com, UserTesting.com, Upwork, Freelancer.com, and survey sites like Swagbucks and MyPoints.

While these sites are legitimate and worth looking into if you are really low on funds, they tend to overpromise the amount of cash you can realistically expect to get. Most function as a job board where individuals or companies can post tasks, and some task postings on these sites may also be scams. For some of the sites, you may need to pay a fee in order to browse and apply for postings or receive your payments. Browsing to find tasks that fit your needs and skills can be time-consuming. At the end of the day, they are usually not an efficient or reliable way of making money. Proceed with caution.

Cash Assistance Programs

Over the last few years, both the Cook County and the Chicago governments have launched cash assistance programs, but none are currently open for applications. We will keep this page updated on whether these programs re-open for new applicants.

Saving for College

The Illinois First Steps program was created to help Illinois families jump start their savings for higher education and training with a $50 deposit. Children born or adopted on or after January 1, 2023, with parents who are residents of Illinois can receive a deposit through Bright Start or Bright Directions.

The parent or legal guardian of the eligible child must take steps to officially “claim” the funds before the child’s 10th birthday. To do so, the parent or legal guardian must have an IL 529 college savings account for the eligible child. To learn more about the program, eligibility requirements, and opening a 529 account, visit IllinoisFirstSteps.com.

COVID-19 Funeral Assistance

The federal government has a program to reimburse the costs of funerals for deaths attributed to COVID-19 (according to the death certificate). The maximum benefit is $9,000 per burial. To be eligible, the funeral must have occurred after January 20, 2020. For more information, including required documentation, go to their website. To apply, call 844-684-6333 (multilingual services available). They are not accepting online applications.

While the official federal COVID-19 emergency is over, this program will continue to provide funeral assistance until September 2025. Even if the funeral took place years ago, you may still be eligible for this benefit.

Church

Many churches provide financial and other assistance regardless of religion. For example, Catholic Charities agencies across Illinois have financial assistance programs for families.

Tip! Crypto is Risky!

Tip! Crypto is Risky! Bitcoin and other cryptocurrencies are risky investments. Their use is expanding – for example, as an alternative to currency exchanges or remesas (remittances) – but be wary of hidden fees and extra costs. There are often hefty fees attached to investing in crypto, from putting your money into a crypto wallet, to buying crypto on one of the exchange marketplaces, to cashing back out – and fees are likely even higher using a crypto ATM.

Savings

Before taking out a loan, which can often worsen your financial situation, tap into your savings. If you have already exhausted any money in a savings account, you may also have retirement savings (401k, IRA, etc.). It is never ideal to deplete your savings or tap into retirement accounts, but it is better than falling into a cycle of never ending, high-interest debt. There are tax consequences for tapping into retirement savings before retirement, and you may have to adjust how you save for retirement going forward. You may want to consult a licensed accountant or a certified financial planner. Be wary of so-called “financial advisors” whose primary motivation may be to earn a commission by selling you mutual funds, stocks, or other financial products.

Sell Assets

If you’re willing to part with an item (i.e., gold jewelry, designer clothes, or antiques) consider selling it rather than getting a pawnshop loan to avoid paying financing charges. Selling an item creates income, which can be used to payoff debts; a loan is not income, it is debt, which can put you even deeper into a financial hole.

Poshmark is a widely used app for selling items. Many folks also have success using Facebook Marketplace. Most Illinois pawn shops charge around 240% APR for a pawn loan.

Paid Research Opportunities

You have likely seen ads for paid research opportunities. Such ads are commonly present on public transportation. These opportunities are frequently done in the context of health-related research. The compensation for these opportunities varies, but they are, in our experience, a legitimate way to earn some extra cash while also performing a public service. We are currently offering a paid research opportunity for people with experience with high-cost loans - participants who complete a 30-minute research interview will receive a $25 gift card. Sign up at weprosperil.org/paid-research-opportunities.

Class Actions

Chances are, you have received notices through email or through the mail notifying you that you may be eligible to receive relief under a “class action settlement.” Millions of consumers received hundreds of dollars in 2022 through a class action settlement with Facebook. If you receive a notice of a class action settlement, do not ignore it. Typically, you can collect your settlement dollars by completing a form online, but you must do so before a deadline that will be specified in the notice. Your settlement dollars can take many months or even over a year to arrive, so don’t make purchases or take on debt with the expectation that you will be receiving settlement funds. If you’re unsure whether a notice is legitimate, Google the company name + “class action” for more details.

In Illinois, there is currently an opportunity to submit a claim to receive money from a potential settlement with Instagram. Claims must be submitted before September 27th, 2023. It is currently unknown how much individuals can expect to receive if the settlement is approved. Learn more.

Option 3: Lower-Cost Loans

If the strategies described in the earlier sections of this guide are insufficient to address your needs, you might consider a lower-cost, short-term loan. Here are some affordable loan options—all of which charge 36% annual percentage rate (APR) or less.

Nonprofit, Mission-Oriented Lenders

- Capital Good Fund is a government-certified Community Development Financial Institution. They offer an Impact Loan of $300 to $1,500 at 12% APR.
- Jewish Free Loan Chicago offers zero-interest loans to people of all religions and backgrounds in the Chicagoland area (Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry, and Will counties). The average loan amount is $5,000.

Tip! Watch Out for Scams!

If you receive a call or text from someone you don't know about COVID relief, Social Security, student loans, loan forgiveness, car warranties, or other benefits, there is a high probability the caller is a scammer. Look up the number for the company or agency on your own and contact them directly if you are concerned about whether the call is legitimate.

Emails that want you to click on a link, open an attachment, or provide personal information are highly risky.

Beware of any company offering "credit repair," "debt management," or "debt settlement." These types of services are frequently rip-offs.

Scammers also use payment apps such as Venmo, CashApp, and Zelle to target victims. Scammers will often pretend to be a loved one in trouble or even pose as your bank telling you there's a problem with your account. If you have any doubt at all, always take appropriate steps to verify the recipient's identity before sending any money.

For more information about scams, visit the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's website.

Your Bank

An increasing number of banks are providing short-term, low-cost loans. Visit your bank's website or call to find out the types of consumer loans they offer. If you don't have a bank account, we strongly recommend you get one. People without bank accounts (the "Unbanked"), on average, pay considerably more for day-to-day financial transactions (check-cashing, remittances, etc.) than people with bank accounts. To learn about affordable bank accounts with no overdraft fees, visit Bank On Chicago if you live in Chicago. If you live outside Chicago, visit Bank On Illinois. A financial coach can also assist you with opening a bank account.

CIBC Bank has an affordable (14.75% APR) personal loan called the EasyPath Personal Loan. You can apply for the loan by visiting one of CIBC's branches. You do not need to have a bank account with CIBC, and they won't require you to open one.

Huntington Bank offers a line of credit to eligible account-holders called Standby Cash. The line of credit is up to $1,000 and is interest- and fee-free if the customer enrolls in auto-pay.

US Bank offers personal loans to both customers (min. credit score of 660) and non-customers (min. credit score of 720). The interest rate ranges from 8.74% to 21.24% APR.

Bank of America offers Balance Assist, a small-dollar loan for its customers. The loan is up to $500 in increments of $100 and charges only a flat $5 fee regardless of loan amount. The loan is repaid in three months by automatic deductions from your checking account. Note: Balance Assist is not available to customers with the "SafeBalance" account, which features no overdraft.

Citi offers personal loans up to $30,000 to new and existing customers at 11.49% to 19.49% APR.

Chase does not currently offer personal loans. However, their My Chase Loan product allows Chase customers to borrow money from their existing card's available credit without any applications or credit checks.

Discover is also a popular source for personal loans. Note that one of their requirements is a minimum household annual income of $25,000.

Banks Taking Steps in the Right Direction

In recent years, many large banks have been taking steps to reduce or eliminate overdraft and non-sufficient fund fees. These policies vary by bank and the type of account you have, so be sure to familiarize yourself with the policies specific to your situation.

For example, Capital One no longer charges overdraft or non-sufficient fund fees on any of its accounts. PNC's Virtual Wallet account has a feature called Low-Cash Mode that gives customers more time to fund their account to avoid an overdraft situation and, for each transaction that would overdraw the account, allows customers to elect whether the bank should clear the payment or reject it.

Credit Unions

Credit unions are similar to banks, but they are non-profit and have membership requirements.

Online Loan

Not all online lenders are affordable, and some are flagrantly violating the law by charging 700% APR! However, members of the American Fintech Council (AFC) adhere to responsible lending standards that include charging at or below 36% APR. All of the following are AFC members.

Personal Loans

- Prosper offers loans up to $50,000 for emergencies, major events, debt consolidation, or purchases. Go online or call 866-615-6319.

Paycheck Advance/Early Wage Access

Many employers now offer services that provide employees with early access to their wages. Before signing up for one of these services, make sure you are aware of all fees involved. There are also several apps that offer Early Wage Access \(EWA\) products. Earnin and MoneyLion are among the most well known.

If you are cash-strapped and use these products, we recommend that you tip zero and, if at all possible, skip the optional fee for an immediate payment. Based on our experience, the money should hit your account in less than three business days.

If none of these options are appealing, you should consider asking your employer for an advance on your next paycheck.

Bottom line: If you pay no tip and no “immediate deposit” fee, you can obtain free payday advances from these apps. But, because the advances are repaid at the beginning of your next pay period, they may cause you to get stuck in a cycle of re-borrowing.

Tip! Beware Buy Now, Pay Later

Online shopping has evolved to make it much easier to purchase items that are unaffordable. Buy Now, Pay Later (Affirm, Klarna, Sezzle, and more) and PayPal Credit have become payment options on many sites. Our recommendation is to entirely avoid purchasing extravagant items that you cannot afford using any of these options. If you use them at all, we recommend using these options only for essential purchases.

Credit Card Advance

Making purchases with a credit card can be expensive depending on the fees and interest. Cash advances are typically even more expensive, especially if you do not repay them quickly. Check the credit card’s website or contact the credit card company to find out about available options.

Lending Circles

In a lending circle, a small group of people chip in every month and lend money to one another at no interest. Lending circles are formed between 6-12 people and loan amounts range from $300-$2,400. Each month, a new member of the lending circle receives the loan until everyone in the group gets their chance. Loan payments are reported to the credit bureaus to help participants build credit.

This option is not suitable for immediate needs or emergencies. A lending circle requires group planning, and you may not be able to predict when it will be your turn to get the loan. However, it may be helpful for large, planned purchases. You can learn more and apply.
